Juvenile hall too 'home-like' to be a secure facility

■ County considers beefing up security at juvenile hall in wake of mass escape

By David Weller

The installation of razor wire, the use of pepper gas, and arming the staff are three possible security measures officials at Yolo County Juvenile Hall are looking into. In response to three recent escapes, the facility has been fitted with new video cameras on the roof and at the entrance. One detainee recently escaped by climbing a basketball pole in an inner courtyard to gain access to the roof. From the roof it is fairly easy to drop to the ground outside.

Staff is not available to monitor the surveillance equipment, but an alarm sounds when motion is detected on the video screen. The video equipment still needs some fine-tuning, however, since staff members report that the alarm has been set off by rain and by fog.

Other additional measures the Probation Department is considering include electronic doors and the addition of three staff members to monitor the video equipment twenty-four hours a day.

One problem with adding making Juvenile Hall more like a prison is the existence of outdated state laws governing the operation of such facilities. A Section of the 1961 law which calls for the establishment of Juvenile Halls reads as follows: "Juvenile Halls shall not be in or connected with any jail or prison, and shall not be deemed to be or be treated as a penal institution."

Other provisions of the law require that reunion with the family be the primary goal, and that "care, custody, and discipline equal to that which should have been given at home" be used.

These requirements are appropriate to the pun-

Man found dead near warehouse

By Steve Marschke

A 29-year old man who lived in West Sacramento was found apparently shot to death near an Enterprise Blvd. warehouse.

The man, Wasi Khan Sarwar, was living on Michigan Blvd. in West Sacramento. Police Sgt. Rick Mayoral said authorities did not yet know whether Sarwar was killed at the 2000-block Enterprise Blvd. site where his body was found, or whether he was killed elsewhere and dumped there.

Sarwar was found near a warehouse at about 1:40 a.m. by two people reportedly hunting for scrap metal.

"At the rear of it, there was a driveway, and he was found off to the side of it." He was shot "several times," Mayoral added.

The Sergeant said Sarwar was living in West Sacramento while his wife lived in Woodland.

"He used to work odd jobs -- fast food restaurants, other things. Recently, he was not working," said Mayoral.

Still no identity

Police artist's sketch of young girl found dead

By Steve Marschke

Despite a nation-wide publicity campaign, West Sacramento police still haven't learned the identity of a 12-to-14 year old girl whose body was found along the West Sacramento riverfront by a fisherman on Feb. 16.

"We have received all kinds of calls and concern," said Sgt. Rick Mayoral, but none of the information police have received have revealed the girl's identity.

The police are still awaiting the results of a coroner's report to learn the cause of death, but there was no obvious trauma to the body, he added.

"The best estimate is that she was there around 72 hours before being discovered," Mayoral said.

He said it is unkown whether she was a victim of foul play or had succombed to a drug overdose or other means of death. And if she was murdered, it is not yet known whether she was killed at the scene or brought to the riverfront (just south of the barge canal) after her death.

"It could have been a drug overdose," he said. "There may have been friends there who just didn't know what to do, and just left her there to be discovered."

The girl is descibed as white, about 5'2", 115 pounds, with reddish brown hair. She was wearing no shoes, but was wearing black socks, "Maneuvers" brand blue jeans and a green and blue body shirt, size medium. She had a gold colored chain and cross necklace.

Anyone with information is asked to call Detective Mertell, Detective Bowler or Sgt. Mayoral at 373-5870 or 372-2461.

State assembly honors landmark

by Elizabeth Abess

Remember when you could get a hamburger for a quarter? And a soda for ten cents? That's how it was when Whitey bought "Pop's" Jolly Kone back in 1963, located in a facility he had helped build just months prior while a sheet metal worker. Now, over 30 years later, Whitey's Jolly Kone recently received a resolution from the state of California acknowledging his years in business. But let's go back to the beginning. . .

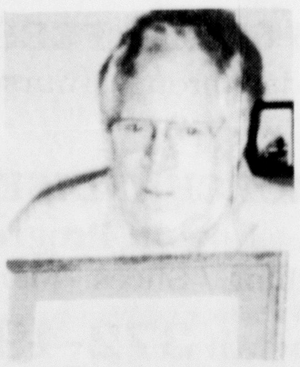
Whitey, a.k.a. Emile Rosaire Boisclair, came to Northern California from Rhode Island when the Army sent him here years ago. (It was in Rhode Island that he picked up the name "Whitey," applied by a bricklayer — "an Irishman" — he worked with at the time.)

Whitey was familiar with the Jolly Kone, but it wasn't doing very well and Whitey felt he knew why. About that time his doctor told him it was time to get out of sheet metal, and Whitey needed a new line of work to support his family (including four children). It was then Whitey decided to try to buy the Jolly Kone. It cost $22,000 at the time.

That was a lot of money and it was quite a gamble for a young family. But he worked hard — seven days a week — and served quality food. It started with burgers, but about one year into it a Mexican lady who worked for Whitey started teaching him Mexican cooking, and it was added to the menu. When asked what the Jolly Kone is most famous for, Whitey will tell you, "Some people will tell you it's our hamburgers, but then we also have Mexican food, that people come from Woodland and Roseville to buy."

In fact, the Jolly Kone has quite a regular clientele, including many of our local firefighters and policemen. Many times when a regular calls, they know the voice — and the order — as soon as they answer the phone. According to Whitey, the reason people keep coming back is the quality. "We just put the best quality material in what we do, and we run a clean place."

The West Sacramento hamburger stand shows some of its usual lunchtime hustle and bustle



"Whitey" Boisclair with his Assembly resolution

And they run it five days a week, Monday through Friday. After having worked so hard seven days a week to pay off the mortgage, Whitey decided to close the Jolly Kone one day a week. Everyone told him he was crazy. But the business continued to thrive. Then he decided to close it both Saturday and Sunday. Again, he was told he'd never make it. And, again, the business continued to do well.

Whitey is 74 years old now, but he is still somewhat involved in the Jolly Kone. His children have grown (all having spent some time working at the Jolly Kone), and his wife, one daughter, his son-in-law and even some grandchildren are still very active in the business. In fact, he met his (second) wife at the Jolly Kone. . .talk about a family business. About which Whitey says, "I appreciate all the people who've been so good over the years."

Whitey's Jolly Kone is located at 1300 Jefferson Blvd. in West Sacramento, and is open from 8:30 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. It is closed on Saturday and Sunday and for a month around Christmas time.

New superintendent setting his agenda

■ Student absentee rates are a top-priority project, according to high school principal

by John Siden

David Miller doesn't take up the superintendent's mantle in West Sacramento's schools until the end of March, but already the winds of change are blowing through the district, as evidenced by last Thursday's meeting of the board of education.

For starters, trustees approved a golden handshake program for classified employees, making up to 25% of the non-teaching employees of the district eligible to take an early retirement before November.

Then, board members turned another page in the ongoing saga of Eileen Stewart, the embattled former personnel director, by assigning her to a classroom teaching position starting in September. Stewart was involuntarily assigned to be principal of the middle school two years ago but reported she was unable to assume her duties due to medical problems.

Stewart's fate was before the board again last spring when she requested transfer to Evergreen School to be principal. Her request was supported by teachers at the school but was disallowed by the board majority. Middle school parents, teachers and students also supported the move in the hopes that interim principal Cathy Bardo would be hired permanently at Golden State.

After several meetings of silence on the matter by the board majority Bardo left the district. Stewart assumed duties for a brief period in July, but has been on leave since then.

Trustees took steps to fill the first of the many vacant administrative positions by hiring a director of maintenance, operations and transportation. Lonnie Poindexter comes from a similar position in the Richmond schools and begins April 4.

More than half of the relatively short, two-hour meeting was taken up with problems of student absenteeism at River City High School.

Fresh from an early morning meeting on the subject with the school's faculty, principal Steve Vaczovsky told the trustees that a working group had been formed to address the subject. "It's a high, high priority," he told the board. "The superintendent, staff and I will be examining all pieces of the school program, formulating plans to address this and bring a plan back to you."

Supporting the need for action, art teacher Joe Schumacher told trustees of 467 absences in one art class last semester, an average of about six students per day.

"And this is an elective class," said Ellen Hines, who followed with her own tales of excessive absenteeism in her required math classes. "They have to have my class, but they don't have to be there," she lamented.

According to information given to the board, absence rates for River City are comparable to other schools in the district and to other secondary schools of similar demographics, but no one took consolation from this fact. "It is universally recognized that this is a problem," Vaczovsky assured the board. In his report the principal said attendance problems can lead to an increase in the drop-out, retention and class repetition rates.

Friends of Library group credits volunteers

At their annual dinner on February 22, the East Yolo Friends of the Library named the bar-code volunteers as the Friends of the Year for 1994.

In November, 1993, the Turner Branch Library was closed for 2 weeks while library staff and an army of volunteers put bar-code stickers on every volume. This was a necessary step in implementing the automated circulation system for all of Yolo County.

The Turner Branch has 55,000 volumes and the 45 volunteers worked a total of 687 hours putting an identifying strip on each one, from 6-foot high shelves as well as floor-level shelves. The volunteers saved the county $6,245 in wages for the hours spent.

Jay Johnstone, Turner Branch librarian, said, "Not only did the volunteers save the county thousands of dollars, but by completing the project on time, the volunteers allowed the library to reopen after a minimum of closed hours. The regular staff especially appreciated the professionalism and dedication of the volunteers. We all were relieved to see the project completed on time and in good shape.

The bar-code volunteers were: Peggy Azevdo; Gerry Bradbury; Billie Brock; Ethel Connors; Sara Cory; Philip Crawford; Barbara Deus; Hilda Deus; Allene DeWald; Cindy Domasky; Alice Douglas; Frances Eklund; Jeanne Feeney; Dorothy Fisher; John Giammona; Addie Heselton; Stephanie Hill; Doris R. Holland; Barbara Vakosa; Jeanne Kelly; Barbara Kokonas; Mary Kozono; Robert Leach; Averil Leach; Dorothy Leamon; John McNeill; Bernarda Mills; Richard Mills; Jacob Misfeldt; Carolyn Moffett; Nancy Montano; Gail Morgan; Alice Petta-Goldie; Lucille Pope; Lisa Purdy; Josephine Rose; Joann Schwartz; Sam Singh; Pat Stratfull; Edna M. Watt; Ken Whitney; Arno Witschard; Marlene Wyneken; and Margy Yutzy.

The West Sacramento Lions Club held the 57th Annual Multiple District Student Speakers contest on February 17. The River City High School winner for this year is Kongpheng Nanthavongsa. The finalists are Mellissia Mejia, Toua Lee, and Rebecca Shubin.

This year's topic, "Today's youth — why the violence?", attempts to solicit reasons and solutions for this growing problem. The purpose of the speech contest is to provide an opportunity for competitive public speaking on a subject of vital interest to the contestants and to the American people as a whole. Public speaking also stimulates self-expression and independent thinking.

First place prize for the local level was $50 and all finalists received $25. Kongpheng will now represent River City High School in the zone competition, which will be held March 9 in Rio Linda, at the American Legion hall (8th and M). A starting time of 7 p.m. will kick off the competition between River City, Center, and Rio Linda High Schools. Susan Johnson, River City High School activity director, organized this year's competition, providing coaching and transportation for the participating students. She would like to encourage students, family, and friends to attend the upcoming zone competition.

The Sports Insider

By Richard Novoa

The 1994 Olympic Games have come and gone, and the United States headed home from Norway with 13 medals, their most productive Winter Games in history.

Nancy won the silver medal and Tonya had a running sideshow in women's figure skating, finishing eighth.

Norway, which lost money hosting the games, won the most medals, with 26, edging out Germany (24) and Russia (23). These games drew about two million visitors, an amount equal to nearly half the population of Norway. The Olympic organizing committee spent more than $530 million on the games, not counting related improvements in the Lillehammer region. It received nearly $400 million from sponsors and the sale of TV rights and tickets.

The Norwegian government will make up the $130 million deficit. The Jamaican bobsledders had a cool running, finishing 14th -- one place ahead of USA I -- and graduated to what is considered the elite top 15.

The site of the 1998 Winter Games will be Nagano, Japan.

Spring training has started and the Giants and A's are hard at work to fill the weak spots in their rosters. The Giants have a vacancy at first base and need another left-handed pitcher or two. Todd Benzinger and rookie J.R. Phillips will go head-to-head for the starting spot and the right to bat sixth in the line-up behind Bonds!

Pitching staff looks real good with the starting rotation of Burkett, Swift, Portugal, Torres, but last year's left-handed starters Wilson and Black have not recovered from off-season operations. The only lefty is middle reliever Bryan Hickerson.

The A's need a lot of help because their pitching staff of Welch, Witt, Downs, Darling, Van Poppel and Karsay could make for another long season. Eckersley had an off-year in the bull pen and the A's invited to old Yankees to camp, hoping Goose Gossage and Dave Righetti can still pitch. Mark McGwire is back and so is Ricky Henderson, who re-signed with the A's after being traded last year to the Yankees.

Boxing returns to Sacramento next Tuesday night, March 8, at the Radisson Hotel. Two Sacramento fighters with one loss each will come out of retirement. Miguel Pantoja (9-1), 118 pounds will face Jose Luis Peralta (3-1) in a four-rounder. Anthony Lopez (12-1), 140 pounds returns to the ring after three years to meet Ron Driscoll (5-1) of Los Angeles in a six-rounder.

Washington Neighborhood Center stablemates Richard Munoz (6-1-1) of Woodland and Willie Jorrin (4-0) of West Sacramento will be co-featured against Tijuana opponents in eight-rounders. Tickets ($15-$25) are on sale at the El Azteca Restaurant in West Sac.

Raiders' Hurndon is outstanding on the wrestling mat

by Dave Harden

This Friday and Saturday, Nick Hurndon finishes an outstanding senior season as River City's finest wrestler at this year's state meet. He earned the trip to Spanos Center in Stockton by finishing fourth in the San-Joaquin section meet at Cordova High School.

To get this far, Hurndon, whose record is 42-11, advanced through league finals (1st), subsections (2nd), and a 16-man bracket of the section's best wrestlers. At 125 pounds, Nick Hurndon was in one of the toughest weight classes.

The weight class features state ranked Adam Tirapelle from Hiram Johnson, and others who competed at the state meet in prior years. Nick's first match resulted in a 5-2 win over a tough Napa wrestler. The second bout ended in a 3-1 loss to Sullivan from Ponderosa on a disputed takedown call with two seconds left in the third round. Nick then went on a roll, taking three straight wins to qualify for the state meet. These bouts included Cato from Del Campo, previously ranked by the Sacramento Bee, and a wrestler from Patterson who entered Saturday's semi-finals with a 43-0 mark. Nick handed this young man only his second loss of the season to earn his spot at the state meet.

Few athletes work as hard as Nick Hurndon. As a third year wrestler, many of his opponents have a few years of experience on him. It is rare for Nick to give up a takedown, and even harder for an opponent to hold him down.

The state meet is a showcase for the best wrestlers in this state. Bet on River City's finest to do well this weekend.

High school works with seniors

River City High School's leadership class, in conjunction with the West Sacramento Senior Citizen's Center, is coordinating an adopt-a-grandparent program which would entail the leadership students providing services to benefit senior citizens. These services include providing yardwork and housework for seniors who are in need.

The purpose of the program, according to Vincent Forry, the River City student who is organizing the effort on behalf of the leadership class, is that "Students realize the value of community service, and who better to benefit from this type of service but our growing senior citizen population."

The program will begin on Saturday, March 19, with about ten students traveling from home to home.

For additional information, or if you are a senior in need or know of one, contact Susan Roi at the West Sacramento Senior Center at 373-5819.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

New supe will help, but don't expect miracles

It's a tad late for New Year's predictions, but here are two for the school district from the psychics at the News-Ledger.

One: Dave Miller, the new superintendent for the troubled Washington Unified School District, will "succeed" b y most people's standards.

Miller appears to be a capable administrator. But equally important, the school board has a vested personal interest in seeing him succeed -- an interest most of them did not share with former superintendent Alberti, whom the board majority ousted.

But Miller was chosen on a unanimous school board vote, and no one likes having to admit they made a mistake. And nearly everyone in the community -- including, presumably, the members of the school board -- is very tired of the political wars that have been waging through the district for the past two years.

These wars have been fought principally with the goal of changing the administrative leadership of W.U.S.D. And if that change, which is now underway, is to prove a failure, then the board majority would have to admit that all the turmoil and morale problems they caused just weren't worth it.

That is unlikely. Instead, it is likely most of the community will unite behind the new superintendent and try to stay out of the way for a while. Look for an extended "honeymoon" for Miller.

Second prediction: the district will have some notable successes in the next couple of years -- including, perhaps, passage of a bond measure to finance a new high school. But don't look for dramatic changes in students' test scores or college entrance statistics anytime soon.

Radically changing top administration isn't the same as a complete overhaul of the educational system. And West Sacramento still has a somewhat hard-to-teach student population. There are numerous language problems among the students, and hundreds of kids who are in town (and in class) only temporarily, while their families take advantage of the low-income housing provided in West Sacramento's downtown, and many other challenges faced by the student population.

And one of the most serious problems -- which won't change quickly -- is that too many of the city's parents and other residents simply don't place a high enough value on education.

So Miller and the new department heads he chooses may bring improvement, but they won't bring miracles.

Commentary

Williams, Carter should make room for new blood

by John Siden

Both Hal Williams, current school board president, and veteran trustee Susan Carter have said they are undecided about whether to seek re-election to the board of education of the Washington Unified School District. They have until Wednesday, March 16, at 5 p.m. to make up their minds.

I'd like to help them make that decision by telling them, "Don't run!"

While recognizing that such advice from this source may be just the spark to send them to the county elections office, it needs to be said nonetheless.

Williams and Carter are a part of the four-member board majority that includes Irene Eklund and Pat Flint. Together they have driven out administrators, angered teachers and parents, ignored community input and made a shambles of the district.

Short of a recall effort, Eklund and Flint will be with us two more years. But district voters will have a chance to change the flavor of the board on June 7.

Carter's term on the board has brought mixed results. She tries to be informed about matters, and she can usually be counted on to make her own decisions. She has a good "institutional memory" of past actions covering her 8 1/2 years on the board.

Message to incumbents: 'Don't run!'

It is unfortunate that her mother, Jolene Muntzel, who was president of the classified employees union at the time, was involved in serious wrongdoing involving student funds at the high school. Carter is not accountable in any way for her mother's actions.

But Carter's failure to remove herself from closed-door deliberations and subsequent discussions of the problems was a serious error in judgement. The incident has, of course, affected her performance and her attitudes toward the district.

A similar error might be cited in recalling Carter's failure to consider the wider ramifications of this connection when she and Flint, as members of the board's recognition committee, chose Muntzel as classified employee of the year in 1992.

Carter has done her best. But given recent events, that hasn't been good enough. It's time for her to move on.

Little that is good can be said about Williams' two-plus years on the board. Coming to the position with little knowledge of the schools, promoted by a local paper whose owners had multiple axes to grind with the schools, and helped along by various disaffected individuals, his actions from the beginning have caused chaos and disorder.

His comments and actions have been the cause of two censure actions by fellow board members. He has been chastised for his use of profanity in board meetings, and his tendency to mumble and not use the microphone causes audience members repeatedly to ask him to speak up.

His personal style with district employees is colored by his years of experience in the correctional system. He can be likable one minute and intimidating the next, so a person is constantly kept off-guard in dealing with him.

Personal characteristics aside, as a board president he fails to run an orderly meeting and couldn't care less about policies and procedures that govern the district.

But most damaging to a person holding elected office is his failure to be open about setting and adhering to district goals and to seek community discussion and consensus about those goals. The clear message is that he (and the three who support him) know what's best.

Having done as much damage as he could, Williams has shown a "new and improved" face to the public in the last two board meetings. Time will tell whether it's because he's running for re-election, trying to impress the new superintendent or merely keeping us off guard.

But if he's got re-election on his mind, I hope he'll see that his time has come to get out of the way. It's time to let a new superintendent have a new board to help him put the pieces of the district back together again.

Time for California to catch up to its gambling industry

By Dan Lungren
California Attorney General

Today, California is facing a major decision over the business of gambling conducted in this state. We have reached a fork in the road. There are two directions which we can take with two very different outcomes.

That is why, along with assemblyman Phil Isenberg, I have proposed creation of a statewide gambling control commission and a division of gambling control within the state department of justice to bring uniform and effective regulation to California's rapidly growing legal gambling industry. The "Gambling Control Act of 1994" calls for an independent California gambling control commission to grant and revoke gaming licenses and a state division of gambling control to perform audits, background checks and other investigatory functions to assist the commission.

Growth of legal gambling in California over the last ten years has been immense, yet our ability as a state to ensure a crime-free industry has not kept pace.

According to a recent report by my office, Californians legally wager more than $12.5 billion per year, not including money wagered at California's Indian casinos. In addition, the report shows that:

- California ranks third, behind only Nevada and New Jersey, in total amount of money wagered within the state;
- While cardroom wagering totaled $1 billion nationally in 1982, by 1992, cardrooms in California alone handled $7.5 billion in wagers;
- There are 256 cardrooms in the state presently, but only three permanent employees of the state department of justice are available to conduct regulatory oversight of existing and proposed cardroom operators;
- By comparison, the state's Horse Racing Board has 58 employees and 25 investigators to oversee 14 racetracks and $2.87 billion in gross wagers;
- The state lottery has about 800 employees and 30 agents to oversee $1.79 billion in gross sales.

It is important to remember that the commodity central to all gambling is cash — cash wagered, cash lost and cash won. Cash is converted to chips and chips are returned for cash. We don't allow major financial institutions to move billions of dollars in cash around without oversight and regulation; the same should be true for the gambling industry.

We must act quickly. Let's not relive the Nevada experience, where for years crime and occasionally bloodshed stained the state's gambling industry. Sheer political courage finally brought about that state's strict and sensible regulatory mechanisms, and the gambling industry and citizens of Nevada alike have benefitted greatly.

Our proposal is largely modeled after Nevada's current statewide commission, which uses strict regulatory oversight to maintain integrity in that state's gaming industry. We don't need to reinvent the wheel here in California. We just need to get it rolling.

Letters to the Editor

Thanks

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your editorial on February 23.

The congratulations which you extended to the two teams of River City High School were well-deserved.

As a member of Soroptimist International of West Sacramento I was happy to help with the preparing and serving of the lunch served to all in attendance at the Academic Decathalon.

I was so impressed with all the young people. They were so well-groomed, very polite and very serious about the competition in which they were involved.

I believe that is more members of our community came out to support these kinds of activities in our schools, the need for a really competant school board would soon be evident.

If our young people are to get the most out of their education, and our tax dollars, we must find a way to provide them with a good, safe, clean learning environment.

The teachers who served as coaches are also to be commended for all the extra hours they gave in preparing the students for the decathalon.

Our River City High team did us proud, now let's stand behind them and elect a school board who can turn our district around.

Again, my thanks to the News-Ledger for recognizing those 18 students, and in pointing out that there are lots more like them in our high school. Too often we only hear the negative, thank you for "accentuating the positive."

State senate race

An open letter regarding the pre-primary endorsements in the new 4th senatorial district:

Already the preponderance of elected state representatives from the old and new 4th district have endorsed one democratic candidate — this even before the filing period has ended. Plans are also being made to have an endorsing convention.

What is the purpose of this pre-primary endorsement? It can't be anything else than to reasert the old method of choosing party candidates — the indirect election by caucus or convention and the smoke-filled room.

While grassroots choices are "less tidy" than the organizational control from the top down, they must be, in the end, the way to go to prevent the evils of the age of the party boss.

One candidate has already been "crowned," the elected supervisor from Yolo County and the heat is on to keep anyone else from running. While the chosen one could be the best possible democratic candidate, the party primary will become a rubber stamp "rather than a reasoned choice on the basis of issues and abilities.

This letter is written in the hope that democratic voters will raise their voices in favor of an "open" primary and call for the traditional debate from which the voter can be an informed voter.

A note: Could it be that the "term limit" which was designed to give non-incumbents a chance, has spawned this premature endorsement by the entrenched leadership and their staff?

Beware

People should be cautious before responding to appeals from charities. Right now, a group called Heart Support of America is asking Californians to collect money for its "Door-to-Door Heart Drive." As president of the American Heart Association, Golden Empire Division, I am concerned that people are confusing Heart Support of America with the American Heart Association. The materials look similar to the American Heart Association's Door-to-Door Drive materials but there is no connection. According to Heart Support of America's own literature: 10% of the money raised this year will go to charitable purposes. By comparison, the American Heart Association will spend 76% for charitable purposes including lifesaving research and educational programs. Please make sure your donation goes to the intended agency.

CASE NUMBER: 20668

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of HILDA ANN PARKS.

A PETITION has been filed by Janice E. Humphrey in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

THE PETITION requests that Janice E. Humphrey be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on 4/6/94 at 8:30 a.m. in Dept. 7 located at 625 Court St., Woodland, CA 95695.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

ishment of juvenile delinquents in 1961, but not to the control of the kind of violent criminals the Detention Center is currently required to house. Two of the teenagers involved in the most recent escape are still at large. The escape involved a coordinated effort by nine of the twelve inmates at the facility. Two of the teenagers severely beat one of the guards on duty while the other seven threatened of the two guards.

Two of the nine who broke out -- Ronnie Prince and Juan Garcia of West Sacramento -- remain on the loose. Two Davis youths have been charged with assisting some of the escapees by driving three of them to Davis, and five more arrests are expected.

Chief Probation Officer Dean Alderman has also complained that the failure of the courts to use the secured courtroom on the premises adds to the cost and insecurity of the detention center operations. Currently a juvenile court justice travels the two miles from the county courthouse juvenile hall on Thursdays only.

If a case must be heard on any other day, the Probation Department must incur the expense of hiring additional guards for transporting prisoners to the court. "Escapes occur during transport. It would be much less costly and less dangerous if the judges would come here instead of forcing us to bring the kids to them," Alderman said.

Concerns over the security of the facility have been increased by recent violent escapes in other parts of the state. Alderman cited two incidents that occurred in Southern California, both in which people broke in from the outside in order to get people out. In one case a group of gang members crashed a truck through a fence to gain entrance to the facility. In the other, a submachine gun was used to break people out.

In addition to the security measures, which have not yet been decided upon or funded, a major expansion is slated for the chronically overcrowded facility. Current expansion plans include ten new rooms, six of which will have two beds. This will increase the capacity from twelve to twenty-eight. Although the County has already allocated about $800,000 for expansion, it is unclear whether funds will be available for additional operating expenses once the facility is full.

Thompson-Candee is a part-time kindergarten teacher in Dixon, a parent volunteer in her son's second-grade class at Westmore Oaks School, and a member of the school site council.

She and her husband, Alan, are 12-year residents of West Sacramento who currently live in the Southport area with their two children.

Also taking out papers is Michael S. Guiliano, a television broadcast engineer.

Two positions are open on the board. Interested candidates have until March 11 to file nomination papers at the office of the county elections clerk in Woodland.
